PREFACE

Reading is the cornerstone of learning, yet it remains one of the most pressing challenges in education today. In response, the Division of Bukidnon proudly introduces Bukidnon's Unified Literacy and Intervention Gateway (BULIG) — a transformative innovation designed to improve learners' reading ability and empower every child to succeed.

BULIG is more than a program; it is a unified movement for literacy, built on collaboration, evidence-based strategies, and a deep commitment to equity in education. This initiative bridges gaps in reading proficiency by providing targeted interventions, innovative approaches, and sustainable support systems that cater to the diverse needs of learners across the division.

Anchored on this vision, the Division of Bukidnon integrates the ARAL Program (Academic Recovery and Accessible Learning), a national initiative focused on learning recovery and remediation. ARAL provides structured and learner-centered interventions for those struggling with foundational skills in reading and numeracy. By complementing BULIG's mission, ARAL strengthens the division's comprehensive approach to literacy, ensuring that learners overcome difficulties and gain the confidence to succeed academically. Together, these programs create a powerful synergy that accelerates learning recovery and builds a strong foundation for lifelong learning.

Through BULIG, we envision classrooms where every learner reads with confidence, comprehends with clarity, and learns with purpose. This gateway opens opportunities for lifelong learning, ensuring that no child is left behind in the journey toward academic excellence and personal growth.

Together, let us make literacy not just a goal, but a reality for all.

Background Information for Learners:

Feature writing is an art that combines factual reporting with creative storytelling to produce an engaging and informative piece. By following these guidelines, writers can craft stories that resonate with their audience, providing depth and insight into a wide range of topics.

Key Components

1. Headline: Captivating and summarizing the essence of the story.
2. Lead (Lede): An opening paragraph that hooks the reader, often with an anecdote, striking fact, or question.
3. Nut Graf: A paragraph that outlines the central theme or purpose of the story, providing a roadmap for what's ahead.
4. Body:
 - Background Information: Essential details that set the scene or provide context.
 - Development: The story's main content, including arguments, descriptions, and narratives.
 - Supporting Elements: Quotes, statistics, anecdotes, and examples that enrich the narrative.
5. Conclusion: Wraps up the story, often tying back to the lead or looking forward to the future.
6. Call to Action: (Optional) Directs readers toward further engagement or exploration of the topic.

Activity 6

Feature Writing Exercises

1. Describe vividly your seatmate in a two-sentence paragraph.
2. Write a short (at most five paragraphs) feature article about abortion. It doesn't matter if you are for or against it. What is important is you remain factual yet entertaining, convincing and informative. Provide your own title. Show your work to your group mates.
4. You are the feature editor of your school paper. This morning while you were on your way to school, you saw a Grade 4 pupil helping an old woman cross the street. Fourth year boys, who were playing nearby saw the old woman but did not care to help her.
5. You interviewed the young boy. Now write a feature story on the boy or on the incident. Supply the facts you gathered from the interview. Remember, you are not writing an editorial. Note also that like an editorial, a feature article is hung on a natural or artificial news peg. Give an interesting and entertaining title.

Background Information for Learners:

Copyreading is editing or correcting errors made by the reporter and proofreading the errors made by the typesetter or printer.

- It is the art of arranging, correcting, and selecting the quality and type of news
- It is also called copyediting.
- One who edits copies is called a copyreader or copyeditor

What to copyread?

1. Errors in fact
2. Errors in grammar
3. Errors in structure
4. Errors in style
5. Libelous and derogatory statements
6. Seditious and rebellious matter
7. Opinion, editorializing statements in news
8. Verbal deadwoods, redundancy
9. Errors in unity, coherence and emphasis

PROCEDURE IN COPYREADING

1. Read the whole article first to determine what kind of story it is.
2. Having determined the type of story, read the article again. This time determine what the lead paragraph is.
3. Take note of errors in fact. Check on the accuracy of the statements and information. Verify when in doubt.
4. Read the story again and mark all paragraph beginnings. Then, correct errors in grammar, spelling, punctuations, and style using copyreading symbols.
5. Improve the organization of the story. Make sure the lead features the lead fact.
6. Go over the whole story and again. Remove all unnecessary and irrelevant materials.
7. Check the length of the story and then prepare the clean copy.

8. Write a very catchy and fitting headline for the story.
9. Mark the copy for the printer (size, type, column, width, etc.)
10. Encircle the slug line (short title, name of reporter),
11. End page with a paragraph. Do not cut paragraph and continue on the next page.
12. Write "more" at the bottom of the page of unfinished story and continue the next sheet. Do not use the back page of the paper.
13. On the second page, instead of numbering as page 2, label it "first add" or "add one" followed by the slug. For example, "first add nabbed" or "add one nabbed".
14. End the story with number 30 or sharp (#). Encircle it.
15. If the copy could hardly be read because of so many corrections, retype it if time permits to facilitate editing and typesetting.

Headline is the title of the news story. It is the display window of the newspaper. It also serves as a source of information for busy newspaper readers.

STEPS IN HEADLINE WRITING

1. Read the whole story to understand its message.
2. Underline the key words from the lead.
3. Using these key words, write a short telegraphic sentence summary of the news (omit articles, unnecessary auxiliary verbs, prepositions, details).
4. Divide according to units of thought into the number of lines required.
5. Substitute simple, effective synonyms to reduce width within the limits of space allotted.

Example: Charter polls

must go on, say experts

2. The first letter of the first word and proper nouns are generally capitalized.

Example: Iran offers more oil in RP

3. Do not use period.

Background Information for Learners:

Sports Writing is a form of journalism that reports on sports topics and events. While the sports department within some newspapers has been mockingly called the toy department, because sports journalists do not concern themselves with the 'serious' topics covered by the news desk, sports coverage has grown in importance as sport has grown in wealth, power and influence.

HOW TO WRITE A SPORTS WRITING:

1. Have a strong lead. Like any article, you want to start your sports article out with a strong lead, one that encapsulates the available information on "who, what, where, when, why and how." This is basic for how to write articles of any topic. Look at sports articles in almost any paper to see how they introduce the game or event they are covering with their lead paragraph. They get the reader's attention with a strong but concise summary of the story to follow.

2. Write clearly and concisely. If you've ever read Sports Illustrated, you know that some sports articles can be what you might call "literary non-fiction:" lengthy, poetic, filled with metaphor and digressions into back story. If your particular assignment requires that kind of writing, go for it. But if you read the daily sports section of your city paper, you will also notice that most sports articles reporting on the sporting events of the past day are concisely written. Yes, sports articles include context and metaphor and technical sports terms, but they're also to-the-point and generally stick to basic vocabulary. Being specific is one of the more basic tips for article writing.

3. Know the context. Like any news article, how to write a sports article will require you to have a basic working knowledge of the universe on which you're reporting. This may mean not only knowing all about the current players, coaches and standings but knowing some history, as well. This may be common knowledge to you, but if not, you may need to do some research.

You will also need to know about the sport itself including rules, history, league standings, current controversies and other information. You may already know much of this if you're a sports enthusiast--but be aware that a journalist may need more in-depth knowledge than a casual fan. Be sure to have a solid grasp on the sport you're covering before you start to cover it.

Also, keep in mind that many sports teams have press departments that will provide journalists with extensive information about their organizations including current players and team history.

Based on the information presented below, write a sports game story of at least 350 words. Statements as presented on this fact sheet may be treated as direct quotations or paraphrases. You are writing for the Sept. 17 issue of the Hays High Guidon.

BACKGROUND	The Varsity Girls' Volleyball team began season-Sept. 15- v. Salina South. Hays lost 15-7, 13- 15, 11-15. The next game: Sept. 19, at Junction City.
THE TEAM	The team includes six returners, Three returners made all-district last year Two returners advanced to the all-region roster, Amie Roberts and Leah Claycamp, both juniors. Rhonda Ames, a senior, is predicted to be one of the district's star players.
SIGNIFICANT PLAYS	First game Amie Roberts scored the first point of the game, an off-speed spike, after only 10 seconds of play. She scored five points in the first game. Kenda Von Feldt scored six points. Leah Claycamp scored four points The Salina South team scored seven points. Second game Roberts scored six points and blocked 10 spikes. Claycamp scored five points. Her most significant play was a dive that set up a point. She also made two fouls. Von Feldt scored two points-one after she made a dig to another player who returned it to her for the score. Hays hit the ball out of bounds four times. The officials called three thrown ball penalties on Hays.

	Salina South won this game. Third game Rhonda Ames scored the first five points of this game. She was injured while making a double block and did not play the rest of the game. Claycamp scored four points, one after a spin serve that Salina could not even return. Von Feldt scored two points. The score was tied almost the entire way through the game. The winning four points all came within one minute of play when the Hays team looked exhausted.
QUOTATIONS	Larry Schmidt, varsity coach The first game of the season didn't go as well as I hoped. We didn't accomplish the team goals that we set. We didn't serve and pass as well as I hoped to. We need to work on our movement and getting into the right position when it comes to playing defense. Jessica Bird, sophomore I think we were playing very well. We need to work on our fundamentals. Overall, I think that we are playing great and the season should be successful. Rhonda Ames, senior I think if we work hard and use our potential, we'll do all right in state. Salina just beat us by playing good clean volleyball. Lori Billinger, senior I need to work on my passing, but otherwise, everything is going great for me so far this year. I think that our team should talk more to each other when we are on the courts.
