PREFACE

Reading is the cornerstone of learning, yet it remains one of the most pressing challenges in education today. In response, the Division of Bukidnon proudly introduces Bukidnon's Unified Literacy and Intervention Gateway (BULIG) — a transformative innovation designed to improve learners' reading ability and empower every child to succeed.

BULIG is more than a program; it is a unified movement for literacy, built on collaboration, evidence-based strategies, and a deep commitment to equity in education. This initiative bridges gaps in reading proficiency by providing targeted interventions, innovative approaches, and sustainable support systems that cater to the diverse needs of learners across the division.

Anchored on this vision, the Division of Bukidnon integrates the ARAL Program (Academic Recovery and Accessible Learning), a national initiative focused on learning recovery and remediation. ARAL provides structured and learner-centered interventions for those struggling with foundational skills in reading and numeracy. By complementing BULIG's mission, ARAL strengthens the division's comprehensive approach to literacy, ensuring that learners overcome difficulties and gain the confidence to succeed academically. Together, these programs create a powerful synergy that accelerates learning recovery and builds a strong foundation for lifelong learning.

Through BULIG, we envision classrooms where every learner reads with confidence, comprehends with clarity, and learns with purpose. This gateway opens opportunities for lifelong learning, ensuring that no child is left behind in the journey toward academic excellence and personal growth.

Together, let us make literacy not just a goal, but a reality for all.

Write a news article based on the following facts which are given at random

- Ferdinand Paglinawan – Police Officer 2 of the QC Traffic Sector 2. He was the one who identified the fatality.
- The incident happened in Barangay North Fairview, Quezon City yesterday morning.
- Michael Franca- He was killed while 14 others were injured. It happened when a speeding bus rammed a Manila Electric Co. post. Franca is 32 years old. He lives on Saint Catherine Street, Barangay Holy Spirit.
- according to the investigator, the victim was apparently hit by the bus. Afterwards he was dragged and pinned between the bus and the wall of the building. The building smashed after the concrete Meralco post split due to impact.

- Joel Bacus – name of the driver. He is 37 years old.
According to Paglinawan, Bacus claimed that the bus lost its brakes and he could no longer control the steering wheel.
- the bus is on its way to Baclaran from Bulacan when the incident happened. Around 9 a.m.

- the driver will be charged with reckless imprudence resulting in damage to property with multiple physical injuries and homicide.

- thirteen passengers of the bus sustained bruises and abrasions. They were brought to the nearby hospital for treatment.

- Franca was reportedly crossing Don Mariano Marcos Avenue when a Rubino Elena bus struck him. The bus has a plate number PWZ-900.

- The driver sustained wounds in his foot. He was also brought to the hospital even as he was placed under the custody of the Quezon City Traffic Sector 2. 'the victim's death was brutal'– said by Paglinawan to The Star in an interview.

Activity 2

Write a news article based on the following facts given at random.

Alioden Dalaig - Chief of the Commission on Elections (Comelec) legal department. He's a lawyer. He was found slumped unconscious with a gunshot wound in the chest. He was shot dead in Manila yesterday morning.

James Jimenez – Comelec spokesman. He confirmed that Dalaig was killed but failed to elaborate on the motive of the attack. Words of Jimenez: "I'm here confrming it was Attorney Dalaig who was killed. Right now, members of his family and the Comelec family are waiting for autopsy results."

Filomena – name of Dalaig's wife. She claimed that her huisband had been receiving death threats lately. Jimenez further said that they would leave it up to the police to investigate the motive behind Dalaig's killing. We were very shocked. I could not believe it when people started calling me about it. He is a big loss for the Comelec. The wife failed to elaborate on the threats made to her husband.

SPO4 Alfredo Dela Rosa – He led the investigation. According to him there were no witnesses so far to describe how Dalaig was shot. According to Dela Rosa Dalaig was carrying P300,000 cash but ruled robbery out as possible motive. Dalaig's money and personal belongings were intact following the attack.

Activity 4

Read the editorial "It's Time to Modernize Our School Dress Code." After reading, carefully analyze the writer's stand, arguments, and overall structure. Then, answer the guide questions provided below in complete sentences. Make sure your answers show your understanding of how editorial writing presents opinions, supports claims with reasons, and encourages readers to take action.

It's Time to Modernize Our School Dress Code

School dress codes are meant to promote discipline and unity, but our current policy no longer reflects the needs of today's students. While rules are important, some parts of the dress code have become outdated, uncomfortable, and unfair. It is time for the school to update and modernize the policy to create a more inclusive environment.

First, some of the restrictions no longer match modern clothing trends. Students are often reprimanded for wearing outfits that are common, appropriate, and comfortable for everyday use. This not only embarrasses students but also disrupts their learning. Instead of focusing on small details like sleeve length or hair accessories, the dress code should focus on what truly matters: comfort, safety, and respect.

Second, certain rules tend to affect some students more than others. For example, girls are more frequently disciplined for minor dress code issues, which can make them feel judged or singled out. A modernized dress code should be fair and equal, avoiding rules that target specific groups. A clearer, gender-neutral policy would make the school feel more supportive for everyone.

Finally, updating the dress code can help students feel more confident. When students are comfortable with what they wear, they are more likely to participate in class and stay focused. A simple change in policy can lead to a more positive school atmosphere.

Updating the dress code doesn't mean removing rules—it means improving them. Our school has the chance to create a policy that respects both tradition and the needs of today's learners. By revising the dress code, we can promote fairness, comfort, and confidence for all students. It's time to make the change.

Guide Questions:

1. What stand or opinion does the writer take about the school dress code, and how is it clearly expressed in the editorial?
2. What reasons does the writer give to support the claim that the dress code needs to be updated? Identify at least two.
3. How does the writer show awareness of different perspectives, and why is acknowledging opposing views important in an editorial?

4. Which part of the editorial serves as the “call to action,” and how does it encourage readers to support change?
5. How does the structure of the editorial (introduction, body, conclusion) help make the argument clear and persuasive?

Activity 5

Instructions: Using the Editorial Outline Template, choose a topic and organize your ideas before writing your editorial. Fill in each section of the outline by stating your thesis, providing three supporting reasons with evidence, identifying a possible counterargument, and writing a strong call to action or closing message. Make sure your answers are complete and clearly express your opinion and supporting points. This outline will serve as the foundation for your full editorial draft.

Title of Editorial: _____

I. Thesis (Your Stand / Main Opinion)
State your clear position on the issue.
Example: The school dress code needs to be updated to be fair and modern.
My Thesis:

II. Reason 1 + Supporting Evidence
What is your first reason? What facts, examples, or explanations support it?
Reason 1: _____
Supporting Evidence: _____

III. Reason 2 + Supporting Evidence
Give another strong reason with support.
Reason 2: _____
Supporting Evidence: _____

IV. Reason 3 + Supporting Evidence
Provide a third reason to strengthen your argument.
Reason 3: _____
Supporting Evidence: _____

V. Counterargument + Rebuttal
What might the opposing side say? How will you respond or refute it?
Possible Counterargument: _____

Your Rebuttal: _____

VI. Call to Action / Closing Message

What do you want readers to think, feel, or do after reading your editorial?

Bottom of Form

Instructions: Choose one of the topics below

a. Should the school dress code be updated?
b. Should students have less homework?
c. Should cellphones be allowed during class?
d. Should the school canteen offer healthier food options?
e. Is the school enforcing rules fairly?
f. Should schools start later in the morning?
g. Do students need more breaks during the school day?
h. Should the school spend more on sports or academic programs?
i. Is the school environment safe and inclusive for all students?
j. Should students be required to wear school uniforms?

1. Write a complete editorial using the following structure:

- Introduction – hook + thesis
- Body Paragraphs – 2–3 major arguments
- Counterargument + rebuttal
- Conclusion – call to action or impactful final thought

Activity 7

Write a feature article about an "unsung hero" in sports. This could be:

- A lesser-known athlete
- A coach
- A referee
- A teammate who works hard but doesn't get much attention

Include:

- Hook in the introduction (interesting opening)
- Background about the person (who they are, what sport, level)
- Their struggles, efforts, or sacrifices
- What makes them a "hero" (values, character, actions)
- A strong closing that leaves the reader thinking

Requirements:

- 3–5 paragraphs (250–350 words)
- Use at least two quotations (you can invent them)
- Use descriptive and factual language, like a magazine or website article

Activity 8

Write a match report about an important game (real or imaginary). Include:

- Introduction:
  - What sport?
  - Which teams played?
  - When and where?
- Body:
  - Key moments in the game (turning points, best plays)
  - At least 3 simple statistics, such as:
    - Final score
    - Number of goals/points by a key player
    - Fouls, errors, or saves
- Conclusion:
  - Overall performance of both teams
  - Who stood out and why

Length: 250–300 words

Activity 9

Write a compare-and-contrast composition about:

An individual sport (e.g., tennis, swimming) vs a team sport (e.g., basketball, volleyball).

- Introduction:
  - Briefly define both sports you chose.
- Body:
  - Explain similarities (e.g., both require training, discipline).
  - Explain differences (e.g., pressure, communication, responsibility).
  - Use words like: similarly, in contrast, however, on the other hand.
- Conclusion:
  - State which type you personally prefer and why.

Length: 2–3 paragraphs, 200–250 words

An estim ated 83 percent of children worldwide received their first dose of measlesvaccine last year, while only 74 percent received the recommind ded second dose.

A vaccine coverage of at least 95 percent is needed in each country and com munity to prevent out bbreaks and protectpopulations from measle s.

As a result of global-scale gaps in vaccination coverage, 57 countries, including the philipines, experienced "large or disruptive" measles outbreaks in two thousand twenty-three. This was 60 percent higher than the 36 countries in the previous year.

The new data also showed an estimmated 107, 500 peopple, mostly children younger than five years old, died due to measles in 2023. Although this was an 8-percent decrease from the previous year, WHO and CDC noted “far too many children” were still dyying from the preventable disease.

In the Philip pines, only sixty nine per cent of the more than 9.6 millionchildren aged 5 and

Activity 13

Creating catchy headlines and writing engaging leads for science news articles.

Instructions:

- ✔ Read the short science news story below.
- ✔ Write a catchy headline that summarizes the story in a few words.
- ✔ Write a lead paragraph (1-2 sentences) that answers the questions:

What? Who? Why is it important?

Science News Story:

Scientists have developed a new solar panel that is twice as efficient as existing models. This breakthrough could greatly reduce the cost of solar energy and help combat climate change by making renewable energy more accessible worldwide.

Task 1: Write a catchy headline for the story.

_____.

Task 2: Write a lead paragraph for the article.

_____.

Activity 14

Evaluating science news articles and writing an original article based on scientific studies.

Instructions:

- ✔ Read the assigned science news article and the related scientific study.
- ✔ Answer the following questions based on your reading:

Science News Article

A collaborative research team from Japan has developed an innovative lithium-air battery prototype with a 1 watt-hour capacity featuring a 4 cm by 4 cm carbon electrode. This battery runs stably and shows promise for industrial applications in electric vehicles and aircraft. The new design addresses key challenges by boosting power output and extending battery life, which could revolutionize transportation technologies by offering energy densities comparable to gasoline.

Tasks:

Part 1: Comprehension and Analysis

1. What is the main scientific discovery or event covered in the article?

2. Who conducted the scientific study?

3. Is the scientific study a primary source or a secondary source? Explain the difference.

4. Why do you think the journalist chose to write about this topic?

5. Identify and list at least three key facts presented in the news article.

Part 2: Writing Practice

Write a 300–400-word science news article based on the study and article you read.

Activity 15

Composing a clear and logical Sci-Tech paragraph using evidence and scientific principles.

PART I – ADVANCED HEADLINE ANALYSIS

Sample Headlines:

A. "NanoShield Spray Makes Surfaces Virus-Resistant for 24 Hours"

B. "HoloClass Glasses Bring 3D Lessons to Life in the Classroom"

C. "BlueCarbon Robots Revive Dying Coral Reefs Faster Than Divers"

Questions:

1. Which headline uses the strongest scientific concept? Explain why.

2. Which headline appeals most to education technology readers? Give two reasons.

3. Which headline suggests the greatest environmental impact? Support your answer with specific words found in the headline.

PART II – LEAD WRITING CHALLENGE

✔ Choose one headline from Part I and write a complete news lead (3–4 sentences) covering the 5W's and 1H.

Write your lead here:

PART III – SCIENCE-ACCURACY CHECK

✔ Below are statements from a draft Sci-Tech article. Identify whether each line is ACCURATE or MISLEADING based on basic scientific principles. Then explain why.

"The new hydrogen battery produces electricity by burning hydrogen inside the device."

Accurate / Misleading: _____

Explanation: _____

"Robotic coral planters can restore damaged reefs because robots can swim faster than fish."

Accurate / Misleading: _____

Explanation: _____

"A UV sanitation box kills germs using ultraviolet light that destroys their DNA."

Accurate / Misleading: _____

Explanation: _____

PART IV – MINI DATA INTERPRETATION TASK

✔ Scientists tested a new device that detects air pollution. Below are the results:

Day	Pollution Level (ppm)	Device Reading Accuracy
1	125	93%
2	201	95%
3	98	92%
4	230	96%

Answer the questions:

On which day was air pollution highest? _____

Which day showed the highest accuracy of the device?

Suppose you were writing a Sci-Tech news article—what is the most important fact from the table that should appear in your lead? Why?

PART V – ADVANCED WRITING TASK

- ✔ Based on the data, headlines, and concepts above, write ONE full Sci-Tech paragraph (7–10 sentences) explaining why accurate technology is essential in solving modern scientific problems.

Write your paragraph here:

_____.

Activity 16

Instructions:

1. Pick a Social Media Trend or Issue
    - Choose a trend, challenge, or issue related to social media that is relevant to teenagers: mental health, "cancel culture," misinformation, viral challenges, body image, privacy, digital activism, etc.
2. Research
    - Find data, news stories, and real-life examples about your topic.
    - Interview at least two people: classmates, teachers, or someone in your community who has an opinion or experience with this trend or issue.
3. Plan Your Feature
    - Use a graphic organizer to outline:
        - A hook (a surprising fact, a personal story, or a question)
        - Background / context
        - Real-life stories / quotes from your interviews
        - A reflection or call to action: Why should people care? What can be done?
4. Write Your Feature Article
    - Write a 5-paragraph feature:
        - Lead: Start with an anecdote or fact related to the trend
        - Body 1: Explain the trend / issue (what it is, how it started)
        - Body 2: Share stories or impact (quotes from interviews)
        - Body 3: Discuss positive and negative effects / complexities
        - Conclusion: Reflect on what the trend means for you and your peers propose a solution, raise a question, or call to action.

Example:

Title: The Invisible Weight: Social Media and Teen Mental Health

Lead (Paragraph 1):
Every night around 10 PM, 15-year-old Kayla opens TikTok, swipes through a stream of dance videos, beauty tutorials, and vloggers talking about their "glow-up" journeys. She pauses on a clip where a popular creator talks about how they feel "not good enough" without filters. "Sometimes I feel like that too," Kayla says quietly. For many teenagers, the glow of their phone screen doesn't just light up their room — it also lights up insecurities.

Body 1 (Explaining the Trend):
social media plays a huge role in teenage life today. According to a 2025 Pew Research Center survey, 45% of teens say they spend too much time on social media — a number that's risen steadily in recent years. While many teens say these platforms help them feel more connected (74%) or creative (63%), others admit there's a cost: nearly 1 in 5 say social media hurts their mental health.
At the same time, a World Health Organization report found that about 11% of adolescents show signs of problematic social media use — struggling to control their usage and feeling negative consequences.

Body 2 (Stories & Impact):
To understand how this plays out in real life, I spoke with two classmates, Marco and Jess. Marco, 16, says his TikTok notifications are a "double-edged sword." "When I get a lot of likes I feel proud, but when I don't, I question why I even posted," he says. Jess, 14, says Instagram is a place for both connection and competition. "I follow people who seem to have perfect lives — but when I compare, I feel small," she admits.
Their experiences reflect a bigger pattern: that behind every "like" or share is often a struggle with self-worth.

Body 3 (Complexities — Positives & Negatives):
social media isn't all bad. Many teens use it as a place for self-expression, community, and even healing. In the same Pew survey, 34% of teens said they sometimes get mental health information from these platforms — and of those, 63% say it's an important source. But the negatives are real, too. According to the Mayo Clinic, what teens do on social media matters: viewing content about self-harm, unrealistic beauty standards, or risky behavior can increase anxiety and low self-esteem.
Experts suggest that moderation may be key — because using social media doesn't necessarily have to be harmful, but overuse or exposure to certain content can be.

Conclusion (Reflection / Call to Action):
So what can we, as teens, do about this? First, we can set healthier boundaries — limit screen time, mute stressful accounts, and take "digital detox” breaks. Second, we can support each other: talk openly when we feel the pressure of comparison or when social media messes with our self-esteem. And finally, we can push for a change: schools can host workshops about healthy social media habits, and we can encourage creators to show real life — not just the highlight reel. If we learn to use social media with purpose, maybe we can make it a place that builds us up — instead of weighing us down.

Activity 17

Instructions:

1. Pick an Environmental Issue
   Choose a topic that matters to you and your community. Examples include:
   - Plastic pollution
   - Air quality / smog
   - Water pollution or water scarcity
   - Deforestation or loss of green space
   - Climate change impacts (heat waves, flooding)
   - Waste management / recycling problems
2. Research & Gather Information
   - Find reliable sources (news articles, government websites, scientific reports) to learn about your chosen issue.
   - Use the "Telling the Story" Climate journalism advice: understand the science, but write in a way that real people can understand.
   - Collect data (statistics, facts) that help explain the issue in your area or school.
3. Interview People
   - Talk to at least two people who are connected to the issue: classmates, teachers, local environmental group members, school staff, or community leaders.
   - Prepare at least 6 questions. Some examples:
     - What changes have you noticed in our environment / community?
     - How does this issue affect you (school, home, daily life)?
     - What do you think causes this problem?
     - Have you seen any efforts or solutions?
     - If you could change one thing, what would it be?
     - What would you like other students to know about this issue?

4. Plan Your Feature Article
    - Use a graphic organizer to structure your article.
    - Identify:
        - Lead / Hook -How will you draw your readers in? (A story, surprising fact, or quote.)
        - Body - Key points, people, and data.
        - Closing / Reflection - What should readers take away? What can be done?
5. Write Your Draft

Write a 4- or 5-paragraph feature article:

- Paragraph 1 (Lead): Open with a scene, personal story, or fact that highlights the environmental issue.
- Paragraph 2: Explain what the problem is, with data / background.
- Paragraph 3: Include voices from your interviews — real people, quotes, personal impact.
- Paragraph 4: Describe current efforts or possible solutions.
- Paragraph 5 (Conclusion): Reflect on why this issue matters and suggest a call-to-action or hope for change.

Example:

Title: Sachets, Streets, and the Sea: How Plastic Pollution Affects Our Community

Paragraph 1 (Lead):
On a typical morning, 14-year-old Mia walks beside the small creek that winds behind her neighborhood. She used to toss snack wrappers and empty sachet packets on the ground — "they're small," she would say, "they'll just disappear." But now, she pauses. The creek is no longer clear: she sees bits of colorful plastic bobbing on the surface. "When I was younger, I never thought my trash could end up in the sea," she admits.

Paragraph 2 (Background / Problem):
Plastic pollution is a massive problem in the Philippines. According to the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR), about 24% of the country's daily 61,000 metric tons of solid waste is plastic.

Every year, the Philippines generates around 2.7 million metric tons of plastic waste, much of which ends up in landfills, rivers, or the ocean. Single-use plastics, like sachets, are especially problematic — they don't biodegrade, they break down into microplastics, and they contribute to flooding by clogging drainage systems.

Paragraph 3 (Voices / Stories):
I spoke with Mr. Navarro, a barangay (village) official, who says, "Plastic waste isn't just dirty — it's dangerous." He explained that clogged waterways during the rainy season make flooding worse, especially when heavy rains come. I also met Marisol; a local youth volunteer who helps organize barangay cleanups. "We collect plastic sachets every weekend," she told me. "It's heartbreaking to see how many people don't bother to put trash in bins."

Paragraph 4 (Solutions / Efforts):
There are hopeful signs. In 2025, the government launched the National Plastic Action Partnership (NPAP) to address plastic waste with stronger collaboration among communities, businesses, and government agencies. At the local level, students in Mia's school started a "Plastic to Purpose" drive: they collect used sachets, sort them, and send them to a recycling center. For the microplastics that don't get recycled, they're talking to barangay officials about installing filters in the creek to trap litter before it reaches the sea.

Paragraph 5 (Reflection / Call to Action):
Mia now thinks twice before throwing anything out. "I realized my small actions matter," she says. But she also knows that change isn't just on her shoulders. We — as a school and a community — need to act. We can reduce single-use plastics, support local cleanups, and pressure companies to package products responsibly. If enough of us do something, maybe one day, the creek won't be plastic-filled, and our streets won't feed our seas.

Activity 18

Instructions:

1. Choose Your Focus
   Pick a specific aspect of poverty in your community or school. Some ideas:
   - Poverty's effect on students' learning or attendance
   - Families struggling with low income in your neighborhood
   - Homelessness or housing instability
   - The cycle of intergenerational poverty
   - Local organizations or efforts helping people in poverty
2. Research
   - Find reliable sources about poverty: local news, NGO websites, government reports, or academic articles.
   - Use these to gather data and facts (e.g., poverty rate in your area, causes, impact). For example, poverty is a "powerful risk factor for reading and writing difficulties" in school.
   - Read personal stories or essays about poverty to help frame human experiences.
3. Interview People
   - Talk to at least two people affected by or knowledgeable about poverty: classmates, teachers, or community members.
   - Prepare at least 6 interview questions, such as:
     - What challenges do people in poverty face here?
     - How has poverty affected students' performance or attendance?
     - What programs or help are available in our community?
     - What do you think causes poverty to persist?
     - What changes do you wish to see to help people escape poverty?
     - How does poverty affect someone's daily life (food, education, home)?
4. Plan Your Feature
   - Use a graphic organizer (or notebook) to organize your ideas:

- Lead/Hook: How will you start? (e.g., a personal story, a surprising fact)
- Body: Key points data, personal stories, interviews
- Reflection / Solutions: What can be done, or what hope do people have
- Conclusion: A strong closing thought that ties back to your hook

5. Write Your Draft

sWrite a 4- or 5-paragraph feature article:

- Lead / Opening – Begin with a story, anecdote, or strong fact about poverty in your area.
- Body Paragraph 1 – Explain the issue using your research / data.
- Body Paragraph 2 – Include voices from your interviews — what people said, their experiences.
- Body Paragraph 3 (if you do 5 paragraphs) – Talk about current efforts, programs, or possible solutions.
- Conclusion – Reflect on why the issue matters, what you learned, and a call to action or hopeful message.

Example:

Title: Invisible Yet Real: The Hidden Struggles of Middle-Income Families

Paragraph 1 (Lead):
From the outside, the Ramos family's home looks like any other in North Quezon City — a tidy two-storey house, a small car in the driveway, and children running out to play. But inside, Mama Luz worries every month: "We don't make much more than what we spent two decades ago," she confides. Her husband's salary barely keeps up with rising costs, and for many people, they are "just about getting by."

Paragraph 2 (Background / Issue):
While "poverty" often conjures images of extreme hardship, there is a growing number of working poor families — those whose income is above the poverty line but still isn't enough to cover all basic needs or cushion emergencies. According to the Philippine Statistics Authority, income thresholds to meet basic needs (food and non-food) are rising. For 2023, a five-member family needed about ₱13,873/month. Even though the national poverty rate has dropped to 15.5% in 2023, many families feel the squeeze from inflation, medical costs, and school fees.

Paragraph 3 (Voices / Stories):
I talked to Luz's son, Dante, a Grade 9 student: "Sometimes I skip snack money so my little sister can eat." His older sister, Maribel, is working part-time in a coffee shop. She says, "I pay for my own school supplies, but Mum worries about paying rent if something happens." Their mother adds that she sometimes hesitates to ask for help — pride and stigma make it hard for her to acknowledge their struggle.

Paragraph 4 (Current Efforts / Possible Solutions):
Some communities are responding: a local church in their area started a "Community Care Fund" where residents contribute a small amount each month to help others pay for utilities or school fees. There's also a non-profit that provides financial literacy training so families can budget better and save more. But Luz believes these efforts must be expanded: "More people need to know about help, and it must be easier to apply."

Paragraph 5 (Reflection / Call to Action):
The Ramos family's story reminds us that poverty isn't always obvious — it can hide in homes that look "fine" on the outside. As classmates and friends, we need to challenge what we think poverty looks like. Schools can offer workshops on financial literacy or partner with local NGOs. We can also support policies that help all working families, not just those at the very bottom. Because when we see more clearly, we can help more meaningfully.

Activity 19

Spot the Column Elements

Instructions:
Read the short sample column below and label the following:

- Lead (introduction)
- Opinion statement
- Supporting arguments
- Conclusion

Sample Text:
"Every morning, students face the same struggle: waking up too early. While adults believe starting school at 7:30 AM teaches discipline, the truth is that teens need more sleep. Studies show that lack of sleep affects memory, mood, and grades. If schools truly care about student well-being, they should consider starting classes later. After all, healthy students learn better."

Task: Highlight or list the identified parts.

Activity 20

Write a Mini Column (150–180 words)

Instructions:
Choose one topic below and write a short opinion column about it:

- Should mobile phones be allowed during class?
- Is social media more harmful than helpful for teens?
- Should students wear school uniforms?
- Are weekends too short for students?

Your column must include:

- A catchy lead
- A clear opinion
- At least two supporting reasons
- A short, strong conclusion

Activity 21

Improve a Weak Column Draft

Instructions:
Below is a weak, unorganized column draft. Rewrite it into a clear, well-structured mini column:

Draft:
"Our school cafeteria is not good. The food is sometimes cold and people complain about the prices. I think they should fix it because students want better food. Also the place is noisy and crowded so it's not fun to eat there. They should change a lot of things."

Task:
Revise this into an improved column with:

- Better lead
- Clear point of view
- Organized arguments
- Strong ending

Activity 22

"Two-Side Cartoon Challenge"

Instruction: Draw a cartoon with two contrasting sides (Before vs. After / Problem vs. Solution).

Examples:

- Before and after social media addiction
- Pollution vs. clean environment
- Responsible vs. irresponsible AI use

Task Requirements:

- Use two symbols
- Add at least one exaggeration
- Write a 3–4 sentence interpretation

Activity 23

“Cartoon Remix”

Instructions:

- Keep the issue but change the characters, symbols, or setting.
- Produce a new cartoon with a different angle or message.

Activity 24

Caption First!

Write a strong editorial caption first.

Then create a cartoon that matches the caption.

Activity 25

Instructions: Write a 10-15 second greeting that a radio host might say at the start of a show. Write your greeting in the space provided below.

Requirements:

- A warm greeting
- Station name
- A short welcome message

Example:

"Good morning! You're listening to One Voice News Radio, bringing you the latest news and updates all day! Stay tuned for today's top stories. We've got important reports and interviews lined up just for you!"

Write your greeting here:

_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____
_____

Activity 26

Instructions: Write a short weather report about the information provided below.

- Greeting
- Today's weather
- Temperature
- A simple forecast (e.g. "Sunny this afternoon", "cloudy skies")
- Advice for listeners (e.g. "Don't forget your jacket!")

Example:

"Good day, everyone! Today in Bayabason, Maramag, Bukidnon, expect cloudy skies with temperatures around 22 degrees. Don't forget to bring your umbrellas, be safe!

Write your report here:

Activity 27

Instructions: Write a short school announcement about an upcoming event (field trip, contest, club meeting), or a reminder (uniform, deadlines, project submissions).

Requirements:

- Greeting
- What the announcement is about
- Important details (date, time, place)
- A short closing line

Example:

"Good afternoon, students! Don't forget that the Art Club meets tomorrow at 3 p.m. in Room 12. Everyone is welcome to join. This is FIS News Radio reminding you to stay creative!"

Write your short school announcement script here:
